

BUILD SCHOOLS IN OLD HENRICO

Levy May Be More Than Doubled to Provide Fund for Education.

In the effort to increase the school levy of Henrico county from 15 cents to 35 cents on $100 of assessed property, those interested in the move are working diligently to accomplish the ends desired. From now until the question is to be decided, on May 11, speeches will be made on the subject in Varina, Fairview and Brookland districts every night until the decision is made by the people.

To-morrow night at 8 o'clock a meeting will be held at the Red Men's Hall, on the Darbytown Road. On Wednesday night at the same hour a similar meeting will be held at Varina High School. The object of the levy increase is for the building of two consolidated schools in the district.

Arrangements have been made for the following speakers to take part in the meetings: J. D. Eggleston, Jr., Superintendent of Public Instruction; J. S. Thomas, Superintendent of Elementary Instruction; R. C. Stearnes, Secretary of the State Board of Education; Jackson Davis, State School Examiner; and W. A. Maddox, superintendent of schools for Henrico county. From the interest being taken in the movement, it seems that the increase will be voted without serious opposition.

At the regular meeting yesterday of the Tuckahoe District School Board, plans were approved for two new school buildings in that district. One is to be located at Westhampton Park, and will cost $7,000, and the other at Rhody Pump, to cost $5,000. Both buildings will be two stories high, and will be equipped with modern heating, ventilation and sanitary arrangements, together with the most up-to-date facilities for teaching.

Special Employee Dismissed.
J. Frank Richardson, of Greenville, S. C., who has been located here for the past few months as a special employee in the office of Revenue Agent Chapman, was yesterday notified from Washington that the fund for the employment of special attaches in the various offices had been expended. He was therefore dropped. Several weeks ago notification was given others in similar positions. The reason of the dismissals, according to Colonel Chapman, is nothing unusual, and does not

Refrigerators have three entirely distinct air currents in the provision chamber, one down and two up; besides, the fouled air from the provision chamber is made to go completely around the ice twice (a patented feature), thereby extracting all moisture, bad odors, etc., etc. But what's the use of talking technicalities when we can tell you that we've sold the ALASKA for the past nineteen consecutive years, with greatly increasing success each year. Ask any auctioneer which second-hand refrigerator brings the highest price! He'll immediately say the

MANY WANT JOBS

Crowd of Applicants in Washington.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

WASHINGTON, May 1.—There were lively times to-day around the red brick building which is occupied by the Civil Service Commission. May 1 is the only day in the year on which applicants for appointment as laborers or charwomen can obtain application blanks at the commission's office, and early this morning a great crowd of men, women, white and black, gathered outside the commission's building.

J. S. Jamison, an examiner of the commission, stood with a bunch of application blanks in his hand at the head of the steps leading to the main entrance of the building. In a moment after he started in to do business, he was overwhelmed by a struggling mass of human beings, each one of them clamoring for an application blank.

It became necessary to call out the reserves of the nearest police station, and when these arrived the crowd of office-seekers had become a demonstrative mob. After a good deal of difficulty the police managed to form the people in line, and there was some semblance of order for the rest of the day.

The pressure of the crowd became so great at one time that an iron railing in front of the building was broken and a big section of the brick coping of the outer stairway was knocked down.

Only about 250 appointments of laborers and charwomen are made by the commission in Washington in a year.

At least 5,000 people tried to obtain the application blanks, and some estimates of the number in the crowd go as high as 10,000.

KNEW CITY WHEN IT WAS A TOWN

Anthony Bargamin, Old Resident, Dies After Lingered Illness—His Career.

When Richmond was a city of less than 15,000 inhabitants, and when the present site of the post-office was a peach orchard, Anthony Bargamin, eighty-five years old, died last night at 9:40 o'clock at his residence, 203 East Cary Street, was born in a house situated on the ground now occupied by the Times-Dispatch building. Mr. Bargamin was, perhaps, the oldest resident of the city at the time of his death.

His father, Anthony Bargamin, came to this country from Lyons, France, in the latter half of the eighteenth century, and settled in New York. Richmond was then one of the greatest and most renowned centers in the country, and when bids were asked for the construction of a city hall here he was awarded a contract for the plumbing.

Anthony Bargamin, the elder, came to this city, and liked the surroundings so well that he decided to make this his permanent home. Between 1793 and 1800 the A. Bargamin Company, wholesale plumbing supplies, was organized. This was the first business of its kind organized in the South. There were two sons, George and Anthony, who acceded to their father's holdings, and after his death they took charge of the business, as the G. and A. Bargamin Company. Anthony Bargamin was the president.

Throughout the years he lived in Richmond, Anthony Bargamin, Jr., took an active part in everything calculated to advance the best interests of the city. He was always successful, and spent his earnings liberally in forwarding interests which might gain for Richmond a reputation as a great business center. In every department of the city government, as well as in business, social and musical enterprises, he sought to cultivate the best talent.

He was a member of one of the first Boards of Aldermen ever organized.

Made Munitions of War.
Raised as he was, in Richmond, when it was scarcely more than a town, Mr. Bargamin, in 1852, when the news spread throughout the country that there were fortunes to be secured in the goldfields of California, determined to join a band of youngsters who organized here, and with them he determined to go West.

The party went by way of Panama, landed in San Francisco, and spent some time in search of precious metal. He returned to Richmond eighteen months later.

Almost immediately he entered the plumbing business, with his brother, George. When Virginia passed the secession ordinance, Anthony Bargamin was a member of the Richmond Rifles.

min, recognized among his fellows as a fearless young Frenchman, decided to link his fortunes with the Confederacy. His knowledge of the fine arts led to his being selected as an assistant in the manufacture of munitions of war, in which he engaged in the early sixties.

Late in the war, when the enemy invaded Virginia, and his city was threatened, Mr. Bargamin threw off the shackles of a civilian's life, and joined in the manufacture of munitions of war, in which he engaged in the early sixties.
